Great Words in God's Word

(Seventh in a series of bulletin articles on Bible words)

“Agape”

“And the greatest of these is love.” (1 Corinthians 13:13).

When Paul cited “love” (agape, in Greek) as the greatest Christian virtue, he was not thinking like a Hollywood script writer. He was describing a Christian duty.

The Greek verb “phileo” expresses the Christian virtue of heartfelt affection some 25 times in the New Testament. A good English translation for phileo is “cherish.” Phileo is how Jesus felt about his friend Lazarus (John 11:36). It is also the word (used as a noun) for the kiss Judas planted on Jesus to betray Him (Matthew 26:48).

While phileo is found deep in the heart, agape is an achievement of the will (in response to God's agape for us). Holocaust survivor and author, Corrie ten Boom (1892 –1983) understood the role of the will in the life of a Christian. She said, “Forgiveness is an act of the will, and the will can function regardless of the temperature of the heart.”

Agape is deliberate and duty-driven. Regardless of our passing passions, agape remains the policy we live by—on purpose. Using the verb, agapao, as a command, Jesus said, “A new commandment I give to you, that you love one another, even as I have loved you, that you also love one another.” (John 13:34). John, Jesus' beloved disciple, wrote; “And this is his command: to believe in the name of his Son, Jesus Christ, and to love one another as he commanded us.” (1 John 3:23).

Phileo is felt. Agapao is obeyed. Both are Christian qualities, but the greatest is agape.

Outside of movies directly about Jesus, I cannot think of one instance wherein Hollywood portrayed love as a command. Who wants to see a movie about that?
